The Talkative Tortoise

A long time ago in India, there was a young king and a wise man who was the king's friend. This king was a good man, but he talked too much. In fact, sometimes the king could not stop talking.

The wise man thought, "I must help the king to be less talkative. But how?"

Not far away, there was a lake. A tortoise and two birds lived near the lake, and they were all good friends. One day, the birds said to the tortoise, "We are going to a beautiful mountain tomorrow. Would you like to come with us?"

The tortoise answered "How can I go with you? I can't fly".

"We can take you", the birds said. "Hold a stick in your mouth, and we'll carry the stick between us"

"Thank you. You are very kind", said the excited tortoise.

"Bite on the stick, and don't talk. If you open your mouth, you will fall", the birds said.

The next day, the king and the wise man saw the two birds in the sky. "Look!" said the king. "Those birds are carrying something! What is it?"

The tortoise heard this and wanted to say, "I'm a tortoise! I'm flying!" He opened his mouth to say it, and fell to the ground.

"It's a dead tortoise!" said the king. "Why did it fall from the sky?"

The wise man answered, "This talkative tortoise couldn't hold onto the stick because it couldn't keep its mouth shut. Great king, this shows us how bad it is to talk too much."

The king said, "I understand you, my friend," and after that he became a wiser and less talkative king.
